These resources were collected in April 2017 and updated in August 2018 to help members of the Southwestern University community find valuable information regarding the rapidly-changing landscape of immigration law enforcement. If you find a non-working link or would like to suggest a resource to be added to this list, please contact Shelley Story, Dean of Students, at storys@southwestern.edu.

Southwestern University considers a student's immigration status as personally identifiable information and part of a student's education record. Said status is therefore protected by the Federal Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA). This means that Southwestern University will not reveal such information without a student's permission, a legal subpoena or a federal warrant.
